

Hello, I'm Daniel.

I've been a digital product designer for 15 years, with a long stint (9 yrs) creating fitness tracking experiences for Under Armour. My career has spanned several industries, but has mainly focused on products and services that help improve the health and well-being of everyday people, through medical, social and fitness-based products. I have experience with mobile, wearable and audio UX, on projects comprised of international teams creating experiences for millions of users, including partnerships with global leaders Apple, Samsung, and Garmin. I'm currently at a Senior/Lead Designer level looking for my next opportunity to make people's lives better through technology.

dctownson.com

dctownson@gmail.com